Wednesday - Saturday, 12 to 6pm

SHFAP presents 12.21 Solstice, a group exhibition in December and January. The winter solstice is the reversal of the sun's ebbing in the sky. It marks the beginning of longer days and more light. This exhibition celebrates this phenomenon coincidentally shared in the birthdays of two people in the gallery. We will have an opening at the start of the exhibition and a party on the 21st of December.

This group exhibition is a wunderkammer, a shifting parade of fantastic objects and artists. Populated with works by historical painters such as Marsden Hartley and Bob Thompson, young artists Kayla Edmonston and Marcelle Reinecke and even those working in their 90s including June Leaf, Stanley Rosen, and Paul Resika, this exhibition takes the gallery's view that art history, both historical and contemporary, is a shifting panorama. Individual artists become newly validated by serious viewers upon progressive researches, beyond market trends. In that regard we present painters who have been part of our projects since the early 80s, such as Andrea Belag, Gregory Botts, Richard Morrison, L. Brandon Krall, Glenn Branca, Christopher Wool, Barbara Ess and James Lee Byars. Subsequent decades of discovery have brought us to Peter Acheson, Gideon Bok, Chuck Bowdish, Gandy Brodie, Susanna Coffey, Angela Dufresne, Mary Flinn, Kurt Knobelsdorf, Sangram Majumdar, Giordanne Salley, E.M. Saniga, Kyle Staver, Abigail Dudley. Despite our focus on painting, the gallery also includes ceramics. Here, Beth Kaminstein, Catherine White and Elise Siegel make appearances. The work in 12.21 Solstice is a triumph of individual creative efforts in the midst of the most daunting circumstances of daily life at the beginning of the twenty-first century. We welcome you to come and celebrate with us.
